FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

LINC FACILITY SERVICES' CORPORATE OFFICE BECOMES ISO 9001:2000 CERTIFIED

National service provider certifies its business processes assuring consistency and a systematic approach to quality management and customer satisfaction

Houston, TX — December 4, 2006 — Linc Facility Services, LLC (Linc) announced today that it has completed the steps required to achieve ISO 9001:2000 certification of its business processes at its corporate office. Linc sees this step as the first in an overall strategy to achieve standards of quality that are recognized and respected throughout the world. Linc anticipates completing the process for all of its critical sites across the United States.

ISO 9000 is a family of ISO (the International Organization for Standardization) standards for quality management systems. ISO 9000 was developed from the British Standards Institution's BS 5750. The ISO 9000 standards are maintained by ISO and administered by accreditation and certification bodies. ISO 9001:2000 specifies requirements for a quality management system for any organization that needs to demonstrate its ability to consistently provide product or services that meet customer and applicable regulatory requirements and aims to enhance customer satisfaction. Although the standards originated in manufacturing, they are now employed across a wide range of other types of organizations, regardless of size or industry.

Linc undertook this initiative as a result of its dedication to quality in all facets of its business. Linc has a firm belief in having a dedicated quality management system that supports its customer's quality requirements, enhances customer satisfaction, and achieves continual improvement of its performance in pursuit of these objectives. "Our values and the way we conduct our business is to think like our customers and bring a commitment to quality and hard work on their behalf. Achieving this ISO 9001:2000 certification reinforces these shared values," said Phil Rogers, president and CEO of Linc.
